John Gardner's Grendel: Grendel Character Analysis Grendel is an unhappy soul in John Gardner's book "Grendel", because he feels useless in society and doesn't want to accept his given role. Throughout this whole book Grendel feels he has no friend in the outside word and no one to except him besides his own mother.

John Gardner's Grendel: Grendel Character Analysis ...

In John Gardner's Grendel, Grendel, both the main character and narrator of the story, narrates the story from a first person point of view. I feel that this adds a personal touch to the story because all the emotions he describes are raw emotions. As I go through Grendel's life, I am sympathetic towards him because of his raw emotions.

Grendel: Study Guide | SparkNotes

Grendel's answer is no answer at all: he states that Hrothgar has done nothing to deserve his kindness. However, it is not kindness, but inaction, for which Hrothgar's miserable state calls. Grendel must act, and act violently, not of his own free will, but because that is simply what he does. Something is coming, strange as spring.

Grendel Quotes and Analysis | GradeSaver

Grendel yells at the creature, stamps his feet, and throws stones at it, but the ram refuses to so much as acknowledge Grendel's presence. Grendel lets out a howl so terrible that it freezes the water at his feet, but the ram remains unmoved. The ram's stubborn stolidity reminds Grendel that spring has arrived in a similarly undeniable fashion.
